

DEPARTMENT OF TRADES

The topic of a mid season draft is brought up every year, with an indifferent start to the season I think it would be beneficial for the Panthers to be aggressive over a trade period

Prospective clubs, this is what we have on the table

David Speed

Grit and determination is what Speedy's game is based on.... Sadly for the Panthers this season Speedy has shown neither of these qualities.

What he offers:

- Punctual payment of subs
- Bar turnover
- Amusing anecdotes from the weekend before

Simon Kann

If we were all blessed with Skanny's eye the Panthers would never struggle with the bat. However the term "Down Hill" skier is often used to describe Simon and unfortunately he has not been seen this season.

What he offers:

- Organises end of Season trip
- Premiership experience
- Invites to the Nike family and friends sales

Marcus Hyde

Lets face it we're an aging list and Hyde is approaching his 43rd birthday. Whilst I can understand he is semi popular, and occasionally gets a team lifting wicket.. Unfortunately we are not going to win a flag with him still on the list and he must go whilst he has some currency

What he offers:

- Maroon headband

DRAFT PROFILE JUSTIN DESSENT - 5 YEARS ON

Hawthorns Issac Smith is regarded as one of the great come from no where draft stories, starting the season playing 2nds Football in NSW and finishing as BOG in a VFL premiership match which resulted in getting drafted by Hawthorn.

AFL draft consultant Kevin Sheenan recalls another great draft story, a story of a kid called Rusty, a kid with an attitude problem, a kid who spent more time thinking about what colour foody boots he should wear then the contest in front of him.

This opinion changed when Rusty lined up on former cricket team mate Dale Thomas in the local derby between Darnum and Hicksville. Kevin expected that Daisy would have a day out...

The ball bounced, Rusty got physical dishing out a cheap shot on Daisy resulting in an early free kick (one of Daisy's two touches for the day). Daisy got up wincing and knew he had a tough day ahead of him.

The events that proceeded are hard to believe, not only was Rusty glove like on Daisy, he hurt him going the other way. Rusty comfortably won every contest and ended up having 28 touches and 4 goals earning him the free Pizza voucher.

Rusty was now on all recruiters mind, many suggesting he'll go top 10 in the draft. Richmond were strongly considering using their first pick on him. Unfortunately for the AFL Rusty chose

PANTHER BROMANCES

Hydey and Will This is a modern day Milo and Otis type of Bromance. They chat daily & have a standing date every Thursday, meeting at 6.30pm at mid off on the Barnyard. I am starting to get worried about this relationship as I witnessed a sickening sight last week when I saw Hydey check the temperature of Wills beer and said "that's not cold enough for you, how about I freshen it up"

Scotty P and Shapes The newest of the panther Bromances, these two have bonded post retirement from cricket. Their Saturday schedule is to have a morning soy chai latte then proceed to the Balwyn Pools where they will apply coconut oil on each other before getting their "bake on" this will be followed by a flutter around in the pool. They may also make an appearance at Greythorn park to "watch" their former team mates, in reality all they will do is talk about how much better off the team would be if they were still playing and discuss their favourite parts of the Notebook.

Harry and Dicko A true test of a good bromance is its longevity, the bromance between Harry and Dicko has been going strongly for over 10 years. Both are extremely volatile characters, so it is a wonder how this bromance has stood the test of time. Their passionate support of the Hawthorn FC has helped this bromance. Few know that Harry is West Indian and how tempers boil when the Windies tour, but as all good bros do they stuck together. .

Poppo & PC Whilst both have been friends for a long time this bromance is relatively new, these two have bonded over their new found love of Thai culture.... They regularly travel to Thailand together and are often seen splitting a bottle of red @ the King and I.
